

SPEAKERS BUREAU

The Arizona Humanities Council's (AHC) Speakers Bureau program offers a wealth of experts and scholars who make entertaining and informative presentations on a wide range of humanities topics. Presentations are designed to share and explore the ideas that shape our human experience, and foster civil discussions among diverse audiences. The Speakers Bureau is a great way for your organization to enjoy an interesting program that is inexpensive and easy to arrange.

Non-profit organizations eligible to participate in the Speakers Bureau program include public libraries, museums, historical sites, historical and archaeological societies, parks, tribal entities, community colleges, elementary, middle, and high schools (Speakers in the Schools only), community centers and public organizations.

AHC's Speakers Bureau represent a diverse range of expertise, from a variety of professional backgrounds, and offer presentations on a broad range of humanities topics including archeology, art history, film studies, history and heritage, law, philosophy, and Native American history and culture. AHC's website offers a complete listing of speakers, including biographical information and abstracts of presentations.

*Todd Weber presenting
"Lewis and Clark: The Arizona Connection"*

Each year, AHC's Speakers Bureau delivers hundreds of engaging presentations in every corner of the state. Best of all – these presentations are free and open to the public!

Judy Nolte Temple as "Baby Doe" Tabor (1854-1935)

ROAD SCHOLARS

Road Scholars programs are designed to foster lively, humanities-based discussions and civil dialogue among diverse audiences throughout Arizona. Road Scholars will travel across the state to give programs and facilitate discussions with audiences in non-profit organizations.

HISTORY ALIVE!

History Alive! Program scholars assume the roles of significant figures from the past. Scholars present as their historical characters, then field questions from the character's perspective. They end by "stepping out" of character and taking questions as themselves, providing scholarly context and insight.

SPEAKERS IN THE SCHOOLS

The Speakers in the Schools program is designed to provide humanities lessons and discussions relevant to Arizona K-12 curricula. Scholars will work directly with teachers prior to the program in order to tailor the program to a specific grade level, meeting Arizona educational standards.